Speakers biographies

Dr Jonathan Trembl Jonathan Trembl has been a consultant in Geriatric Medicine in Birmingham since 2003. He is currently clinical lead for Geriatric Medicine at Queen Elizabeth Hospital, Birmingham. His interests include orthogeriatrics, prevention and management of falls and fractures, end of life care, and delirium. He has also been a Medical Examiner for the last 5 years.

Mrs Louise Hunt

Mrs Hunt started her career training as a Registered General Nurse at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Birmingham. After qualifying, she undertook a law degree and practiced as a Specialist Clinical Negligence Lawyer. She also completed a Master Degree in Medical Ethics and Law from Manchester University.

She started her Coronial career in May 2008 working as a Deputy Coroner in Coventry and Warwickshire. She took up a full time Coroner post in South Wales in January 2012. She took up post as Senior Coroner in Birmingham in November 2013.

Dr Inigo Perez- Celorrio

Dr Inigo Perez has been a DVLA Doctor since 2001. He qualified in 1986 (University of the Basque Country, Spain) and moved to Great Britain in 1988. He has experience in Geriatric Medicine, Rehabilitation, and Stroke Medicine. Dr Perez was awarded a Masters Degree by King's College London in 1999.

Dr Thomas Jackson

Dr Jackson currently works as a clinical academic geriatrician in the Institute of Inflammation and Ageing at the University of Birmingham.

His research interests include the immune-inflammatory basis of delirium, and how this impacts on the development of longer term cognitive outcomes, as well as work understanding how our ageing immune system may drive frailty and sarcopenia. His PhD was on pragmatic methods to identify dementia in older people with delirium and the affects of clinical subtypes and inflammatory profiles of delirium on outcomes. He is lead for Geriatric Medicine teaching across disciplines at the Medical and Dental School.

Clinically he works as a consultant orthogeriatrician at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital, Birmingham. He also regularly contributes to the unselected general medicine admissions take.

He tweets using @delirious_dr and is a believer in the potential for social media to increase research impacts. He sits on the board of the European Delirium Association and was recently awarded the British Geriatrics Society Rising Star award.
